BA/MAT combined degree program in Africana Studies / Adolescence Education: Social Studies – Proposal Date: December 5, 2008

A. Overview of Proposal

B. SUNY Proposal

1. Program title and suggested HEGIS code number for the multi-award program.

2. Titles and SED program code numbers of the currently registered programs to be combined.

3. Clear tabular display of the separate existing programs juxtaposed with the combined program.

4. General requirements for program completion - Combined BA/MAT Program

5. Specific program requirements:

   a. Limitations imposed on admission to combined degree program in order to restrict to those students with exceptional academic records. Include description of admission requirements, and administrative approval.

   b. List all required courses showing number of credits whether graduate or undergraduate, when and how often offered.

   c. Indicate the number of undergraduate (if applicable) and graduate elective credits required.

   d. Indicate the number of semesters of full-time study required for program completion at the undergraduate (if applicable) and graduate levels.

   e. State all other program requirements such as thesis, comprehensive examination, field experience, project, and residence.

   f. Describe the means by which program quality is assured given the time-shortened aspect of the program. (including exit policy)

OVERVIEW OF PROPOSAL

Rationale
The following proposal would create a combined BA/MAT program in Africana Studies and Adolescence Social Studies 7-12. Admission to this program would be selective. The articulation and continuity of study between the undergraduate and graduate programs will provide students who are admitted to this program with a more intense and focused education in history than is available within the existing MAT program. Students in the proposed program will have the opportunity to take additional graduate history courses (two) than the five required by the current MAT program or most other area master’s programs for social studies teachers. The additional two courses may be substituted for their equivalents as part of the undergraduate portion of the program bringing to fifteen, the total number of graduate credits taken while the student is in an undergraduate career. The students who complete this program will undoubtedly have stronger content knowledge than the graduates of any other social studies teacher preparation program on Long Island. This will certainly redound to their benefit in the job market. In addition, we hope that such a program would help increase the number of AFS undergraduate majors, that it would draw more minority students into the Social Studies Teacher Education Program, and that it would help redress the shortage of minority teachers of social studies in the region.

Admissions and Continuation
Students will be required to apply to the MAT program during their junior year, and students who are admitted will take two graduate history courses in the fall of their senior year. The basic admission requirements would be 3.2 GPA at Stony Brook (which is higher than both the 2.75 required by the undergraduate social studies program and the 3.0 required for applicants to the existing MAT) and recommendations from instructors (as currently required for admission to any MAT program). Students who are accepted into this program will take two graduate courses during semester 7. Their performance would then be reviewed (as is currently the case with all students in the combined bachelor’s master’s degree programs), and permission to complete the remainder of the graduate program would be based on: satisfactory performance in the two grad courses and overall cumulative GPA.

Students who either decided not to continue for the MAT or who were not allowed to continue based on their performance in these two graduate courses would be able to graduate with a BA at the end of semester 8 (including the two graduate courses).

Time Shortening
Students will be allowed to substitute at least 3, and at most 5, graduate courses for upper-division courses.

Relation to Existing programs
The proposed program would not require any changes to the existing undergraduate program.

This proposal does not call for the elimination of any existing programs or certification tracks.
SUNY Proposal

1. Program title and suggested HEGIS code number for the combined degree program.

Title: BA/MAT combined degree program in Africana Studies / Adolescence Education: Social Studies
Suggested HEGIS Code: 2211 / 2201.01

2. Titles and program code numbers of the currently registered programs which are to be combined.

26342 BA Africana Studies/Adolescence Education: Social Studies 7-12 (HEGIS 2211)
26343 MAT Adolescence Education: social studies (HEGIS 2201.01)

NOTES TO THE FOLLOWING TABLES

Africana Studies Major Requirements (with social studies certification)
(http://www.stonybrook.edu/ugrdbulletin/current/pdfs/afsM.pdf)
1. AFS 101 and AFS 102
2. Two courses from each of the following four areas
   a. Africana Studies in the Humanities (denoted AFH I & II)
   b. Africana Studies in the Social Sciences (denoted AFS I & II)
   c. African-American Experience (denoted AA Experience I & II)
   d. The Global African Experience (denoted Global African Experience I & II)
3. Three Credits of either AFH or AFS 447 or 487
4. Twelve upper-division elective credits chosen from courses offered by the department
5. Upper-division writing requirement
6. 32 credits of social studies pedagogy and student teaching
7. Must satisfy the 11 Required Areas of Study (RAS) for social studies majors (as detailed on the advising worksheet included as the final exhibit to this document).

The major requires 5 specific upper-division courses. Students must take at least 8 additional upper-division courses selected from either free electives or the courses taken to satisfy major requirements.

DEC = Diversified Education Requirement, which corresponds to SUNY Gen Ed Requirements

Time Shortening: Any three graduate courses will be counted towards undergraduate upper-division electives. However, students will be encouraged to take up to two more graduate history courses than are required by the existing MAT program in lieu of comparable undergraduate history courses or electives. Thus, the combined program will result in a net time shortening of 3-5 courses or 9-15 credits. Both options are shown in the tables below.
3. Clear tabular display of the separate existing programs juxtaposed with the combined program.

Numbers in parentheses represent totals if students opt to take 7 graduate-level content courses with graduate courses taken as part of the combined program counting towards Upper Division requirements.

Includes CEG courses taken in senior year counting towards satisfaction of undergraduate upper-division requirements.

Must have a minimum of 48 undergraduate credits in history/social sciences.
5. Specific Program Requirements

a. Limitations imposed on admission to combined degree program in order to restrict to those students with exceptional academic records. Include description of admission requirements, and administrative approval.

Currently, undergraduates must have a 2.75 GPA to be admitted to the social studies education program, and applicants to the existing MAT program must have at least a 3.0 undergraduate GPA. The proposed BA/MAT program will be restricted to students with a strong undergraduate record who can be expected to succeed in the MAT program. Students will be required to apply to the MAT program during their junior year. The basic admission requirements will be 3.2 GPA at Stony Brook, recommendations from content area instructors, and satisfactory performance in pedagogy courses.

Students who are accepted into the program will begin taking graduate content and pedagogy courses during their fourth year with student teaching at the end of the program. Permission to continue in the combined program would be contingent upon satisfactory performance in the two graduate courses taken during the fall of their senior year. The attached model course of study requires students to complete all requirements for the BA in 8 semesters, so students who either choose not to complete the program or who are not permitted to continue would still be able to finish at the end of their fourth year with a BA.

b. List all required courses showing number of credits whether graduate or undergraduate, when and how often offered.

Please refer to the chart on p. 5 “General Requirements for Program Completion”

Undergraduate major requirements
For the most part, students have substantial leeway in choosing which courses to take to satisfy the requirements of both the Africana Studies major and the social studies education program. Multiple courses are offered each semester that would permit students to satisfy major requirements. The AFS 101/102 and the HIS 101/102 and 103/104 sequences are large lecture courses that are offered fall/spring every year. Students who are admitted to the combined program will be given preference in registering for the upper division courses to ensure that they complete this requirement by the spring of their junior year.

Pedagogy courses
Every pedagogy course required for certification is offered every semester and during the summer with the exception of the social studies methods sequence CEE 577 and 578 (and the co-requisite field experience) and student teaching, which are only offered during the academic year.

Social studies content requirements
The social studies education program has a number of area/distribution requirements—please see the attached undergraduate and graduate advising worksheets (Appendix V). For the most part, students have substantial choice regarding the specific course which they may take to satisfy these requirements. As noted above, the HIS 101/102 and 103/104 sequences are offered every year. HIS 281 and ECO 100 are also offered annually. All of the courses that may be taken to satisfy the various distribution requirements have been selected both because they provide a broad knowledge of the topic, and also because they are courses that are offered on a regular basis (i.e., each semester in many cases) and can accommodate a greater number of students. In addition, other introductory courses may be substituted for required survey courses.

Graduate history courses
Students in the combined program will be expected to complete the various area/distribution requirements before beginning graduate study, so this should not impose any constraints on their graduate course selection. Generally, the history department offers 12 courses per year for students in the MAT program. The only course that is required of all students in the MAT program is CEG 523, which is normally offered two times per year. An MA program in Africana Studies has just been approved. We expect that some of these courses will be cross listed with history, thus increasing the number of graduate courses available to students in the combined program.

NOTE: All courses are 3 credits with the exception of the two 1-credit field experience courses (CEF 548/549).
c. Indicate the number of undergraduate and graduate elective credits required.

6 undergraduate elective credits; 12 upper division electives within the AFS major; numerous choices concerning courses to be taken to satisfy major distribution requirements; substantial degree of choice among graduate history courses to be taken to satisfy MAT requirements.

d. Indicate the number of semesters of full-time study required for program completion at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

10 semesters: 7 undergraduate and 3 graduate.

Note: The two degrees are conferred only when the entire combined degree program has been completed. Both degrees are conferred together unless the student elects to exit the combined degree program. See the exit policy in part 5.f. of this proposal.

e. State all other program requirements such as thesis, comprehensive examination, field experience, project, and residence.

The undergraduate degree program includes a major writing requirement. The program will require 100 hours of field experience and the student teaching practicum, at least 50% of which must be completed in high-needs schools.

All students must pass the Liberal Arts and Sciences Test (LAST) prior to student teaching. Students must also pass both the Content Specialty Test (CST) and the Assessment of Teaching Skills–Written (ATS/W) for initial certification. To ensure that our candidates have the content knowledge necessary to assist students in grades 7 through 12 in meeting the State Learning Standards, we also recommend that candidates pass the NY State Content Test (CST) prior to student teaching.

f. Describe the means by which program quality at both degree levels is assured in spite of time-shortened aspect of the program.

The combined program would permit students to complete the BA and the MAT in 10 semesters, instead of 11 semesters, and three graduate courses would be counted towards the undergraduate degree. The quality of the combined program is guaranteed by requiring students to take two additional graduate history courses, admitting into the program students who have demonstrated the potential to do well in graduate-level coursework, and only allowing those students to progress through the program who have performed satisfactorily in their first two graduate courses.

Exit Policy:

Stony Brook undergraduate degrees:
(a) require 120 credits
(b) allow students to count a maximum of six (6) graduate credits towards the undergraduate degree

Stony Brook combined bachelors/masters degrees:
(c) require a minimum of 138 credits.
(d) allow students to count a maximum of fifteen (15) graduate credits towards the undergraduate portion of the degree
(e) require that students who exit the combined program before completion satisfy requirements for the regular undergraduate degree (above, (a), (b)).

Students in the combined degree program will be advised in a timely fashion so that they may complete, if necessary, the regular undergraduate degree without having to take additional undergraduate courses. If a student is asked to leave the program based on unsatisfactory progress, the student will be informed in time for the student to complete the undergraduate requirements with a maximum of six (6) graduate credits and a total of 120 credits.

* IRP stands for the Department's Inventory of Registered Programs, which is sent to each institution annually. Any program leading to a provisional certificate will be removed from the Inventory of Registered programs (IRP) effective February 2, 2004. All students enrolled in a program that will be discontinued on that date will need to have completed the program or transferred to a registered program on or before that date.

All of the pedagogy elements of the proposed BA/MAT program in Africana Studies are identical with those of the BA/MAT program in Social Studies that was approved on June 16, 2006 (Hegis Code: 2205; Program Code: 31036).

REGISTRATION OF PROGRAMS LEADING TO CLASSROOM TEACHING CERTIFICATES

52.21(b) Programs leading to certification in teacher education that enroll students who will apply for initial certification on or after February 2, 2004, to qualify for such initial certification effective on or after September 1, 2004, shall meet the requirements of this subdivision, except that all programs leading to certification valid for pupil personnel service or administrative and supervisory service shall meet the requirements of subdivision (a) of this section instead of the requirements of this subdivision.

[Note: These regulations do not apply to programs in pupil personnel service and in administrative and supervisory service.]

(1) Definitions. As used in this subdivision:

(i) Annotation of a teaching certificate means the recognition that the holder of an appropriate valid teaching certificate has additional pedagogical knowledge, skills and experiences attained on a voluntary basis, and subject to the limitations and requirements set forth in the teacher certification requirements of this Title.

(ii) Classroom teaching certificate means a teaching certificate other than a certificate in pupil personnel service or administrative and supervisory service.

(iii) Cognate means a subject the knowledge of which is directly related to understanding fully the knowledge of a second subject, as chemistry is a cognate of biology. The determination of what subject will be designated a cognate for the second subject at a given institution will be made by the faculty for that second subject at the institution.

(iv) Concentration means major, as defined in this paragraph.
(vii) Field experience means direct observation of teaching, participation in teaching, or teaching itself that is related to the teacher education program in which the candidate is enrolled; engaged in prior to student teaching or practica; and carefully selected and planned by program faculty.

(viii) Initial certificate means the first teaching certificate obtained by a candidate that qualifies that individual to teach in the public schools of New York State, excluding the transitional certificate and temporary license, and subject to the limitations and requirements set forth in the teacher certification requirements of this Title.

(ix) Major means sequential study in a subject or interdisciplinary field of at least 30 semester hours that provides knowledge of breadth and depth in that subject or interdisciplinary field, except as otherwise prescribed in this subdivision.

(xi) Practica means structured, college-supervised learning experiences for a student in a teacher education program in which the student teacher practices the skills being learned in the teacher education program through direct experiences with individual students, or with groups of students. These skills are practiced under the direct supervision of the certified teacher who has official responsibility for the students.

(xii) Professional certificate means the final teaching certificate obtained by a candidate that qualifies that individual to teach in the public schools of New York State, subject to the limitations and requirements set forth in the teacher certification requirements of this Title.

(xiii) Student teaching means a structured, college-supervised learning experience for a student in a teacher education program in which the student teacher practices the skills being learned in the teacher education program and gradually assumes increased responsibility for instruction, classroom management, and other related duties for a class of students in the area of the certificate sought. These skills are practiced under the direct supervision of the certified teacher who has official responsibility for the class.

(xiv) Subject means a branch of knowledge or study.
GENERAL REQUIREMENTS
FOR THE REGISTRATION OF ALL PROGRAMS LEADING TO CLASSROOM
TEACHING CERTIFICATES

52.21 (b)(2) - General Requirements.

(h) Institutions shall provide sufficient numbers of qualified, full-time faculty in order to: foster and maintain continuity and stability in teacher education programs and policies; ensure that the majority of credit-bearing courses in the program are offered by full-time faculty; and ensure the proper discharge of all other faculty responsibilities. Faculty teaching assignments shall not exceed 12 semester hours per semester for undergraduate courses, or 9 semester hours per semester for graduate courses, or 21 semester hours per academic year for faculty who teach a combination of graduate and undergraduate courses, while still providing sufficient course offerings to allow students to complete their programs in the minimum time required for earning the degree. Individual faculty members shall not supervise more than 18 student teachers per semester. Supervision of field experiences, practica, and student teaching shall be considered by the institution in determining faculty load, and institutions shall demonstrate how such supervision is considered in determining faculty load. The Commissioner may grant a waiver from one or more requirements of this clause upon a showing of good cause satisfactory to the Commissioner, including but not limited to a showing that the institution cannot meet the requirement because of the nature of the program, which otherwise meets the requirements of this Part.

What percentage of credit-bearing education courses in the program is offered by full-time education faculty?

What is the maximum teaching load for education faculty?
The maximum teaching load is 4 courses annually for tenured or tenure-track faculty and 6 courses for full time, non-tenure-track faculty. Faculty also receive appropriate release time for administrative responsibilities.

How many student teachers supervised equate to one credit of course load?
The same faculty supervise student teachers and teach the student teaching seminar. This joint assignment counts for two courses, and the maximum number of students is 12. This means that faculty will supervise no more than 6 students per course.
Complete the Faculty Charts on the following pages, for each proposed program, providing information on full-time and part-time or adjunct faculty of the institution who are affiliated with the program. For full-time faculty, include tenure status (see note on Faculty Chart), the percentage of time assigned to this program, number of courses taught annually in the program, all earned degrees and specific field of each degree (more specific than “Education”), NYS certificates, and school teaching experience (e.g., Jane Doe, T; 75%, 8; Ph.D., Math Education, M.S. Math Education, B.S. Math; Math 7-12 cert. and 5 years teaching H.S. math). For part-time or adjunct faculty, include the number of courses taught annually in the program, all earned degrees and specific field of each degree, NYS certificates, and school teaching experience. (Please note the requirements in Section 52.2 (b) (4) and (5) of Commissioner’s Regulations (found in attached Supplement) concerning earned doctorates held by faculty teaching in curricula leading to baccalaureate and graduate degrees.)

| Richard Rocco | 2 | M.A. History | NYS certification – secondary social studies
Taught social studies in two districts on Long Island for more than 20 years and served as assistant principal at Miller Place High School 1992-2001.
Developed curriculum for AP, criminal justice, and US history regents courses, chaired school improvement and child study teams, and served on English/social studies joint curriculum committee. |

Please note that faculty information should show that the instructor of every pedagogical course has expertise in that pedagogical area.
(i) Institutions shall demonstrate that participation in relationships with local schools is a valued component of the responsibilities of the faculty with primary appointments to teacher education.

What steps does the institution take to show faculty that the institution considers faculty participation in relationships with local schools to be a component of faculty responsibilities that is valued by the institution?

Faculty participation in relationships with the local school districts is a crucial aspect of the responsibilities of all education faculty. We have established partnerships with a number of area schools and districts to secure placement opportunities for field experience and student teaching, and social studies faculty are involved in professional activities and associations with many area schools. Education faculty are encouraged to engage in such activities; teaching loads are established so as to ensure that time is available for such work; and involvement with area schools is taken into account in promotion and tenure decisions.

(j) Institutions shall provide sufficient resources and equipment and adequate facilities and physical space, as prescribed in section 52.2(a) of this Part, to support effective teaching and scholarship by faculty and effective learning and scholarship by students in the program.

Describe the resources, equipment, facilities, and physical space that are:

1) dedicated to this program:
   As part of Stony Brook’s successful NCATE accreditation in October 2004, the University has committed substantial additional financial resources to the Social Studies Teacher Education Program. This has enabled us to hire additional full-time faculty with requisite expertise and experience and to reduce our maximum class sizes to well below the maximum limits established by NCATE and NYSED. We have adequate secretarial support, supplies, and equipment (computers, telephones, photocopy machines, TVs, VCRs) to support our mission. All faculty have offices (either personal or, with some part-time faculty, shared) in the social studies wing of one of the main campus buildings.

2) readily available for use by this program.
   While all faculty have computers in their offices, the most important campus-wide resources that are available to the program are the computing facilities offered through the Division of Information Technology (DoIT), Blackboard, Client Support and the Teaching, Learning and Technology (TLT) Office. There are numerous computer labs located across campus that are available to all enrolled students. TLT provides instruction to social studies classes in the relevant technologies. Client Support is responsible for maintaining the campus network and maintaining faculty computers. The Professional Education Program and DoIT jointly maintain the online assessment system used by the program.

Include library resources and facilities, as well as any special facilities that pertain to this program (e.g., music, speech/language laboratories, physical education, etc.).

See Appendix I
(k) Institutions shall demonstrate how they use various types of assessments to evaluate students for admission to teacher education programs and based on such assessments prescribe study and experiences that will enable students to develop the knowledge, understanding, and skills necessary to successfully meet the requirements for certification upon program completion.

Attach a published statement of, or state here, the criteria for admission to the institution and to the program.

Undergraduates are admitted to the University and only apply for admission to the Social Studies Teacher Education Program at the beginning of their junior year.

The requirements for admission to Stony Brook University are as follows
(http://www.stonybrook.edu/ugrdbulletin/current/pdfs/Admissions.pdf):

Freshman Admission

Stony Brook evaluates applicants on an individual basis. There is no automatic cutoff in the admission process, either in grade point average, rank, or test scores. The Admissions Committee seeks to enroll the strongest and most diverse class possible. Successful applicants will typically have earned:

* a high school diploma or equivalent (a Regents diploma is preferred for New York State residents);
* a strong high school academic program that includes:
  * 3 to 4 units of mathematics (4 units required for engineering)
  * 4 units of English
  * 4 units of social studies
  * 3 units of science (4 units required for engineering)
  * 2 or 3 units of a foreign language;
* standardized test scores that indicate the promise of success in a rigorous undergraduate course of study.

Stony Brook also welcomes applications from those with special talent or exceptional ability in a particular area. SAT II scores in writing, mathematics, and a third area of the student’s choice are recommended. Two letters of recommendation from counselors and teachers may be requested by Stony Brook’s Admissions Office.

Once students have been admitted to the University, they may apply for admission to the Social Studies Teacher Education Program. In addition to a major in one of the social sciences, to be admitted to the program students must:

- submit an application essay,
- have an overall GPA of 2.75 or better based on at least 12 credits taken at Stony Brook. Incoming transfer students will be evaluated on the basis of GPA from their prior institution,
- have taken either HIS 101 or 102 and either HIS 103 or 104 (or equivalent courses at other institutions), and
- have satisfied at least three of the required areas of study with a B or better. HIS 101/102 and HIS 103/104 may be used to satisfy this admission requirement.
MAT Admission - Current
Requirements or admission to the MAT program in Social Studies Education can be found at: http://www.sunysb.edu/spd/graduate/matss.html.

Applicants to the MAT program must
- have a bachelor’s degree in history or one of the social science fields, such as sociology, political science, Africana Studies, etc., (including a minimum of 18 credits in history),
- have a minimum 3.0 undergraduate GPA
- submit three letters of recommendation and an application essay.

Admission to Combined BA/MAT – Proposed
Undergraduates are admitted to the University and only apply for admission to the Social Studies Teacher Education Program at the beginning of their junior year.

Students must
- be enrolled as an Africana Studies major,
- have a minimum 3.2 undergraduate GPA,
- submit three letters of recommendation.

Describe the process for evaluating the preparation of candidates for admission to the program, prescribing study and experiences to meet requirements, and evaluating student progress.

Once accepted into the MAT Program in Social Studies Education, students will be advised about major content requirements by the Africana Studies Program and about the pedagogy requirements by the director of the social studies program.

As part of the admissions process, all students must meet with the Director of Social Studies Education, who reviews their coursework taken to that point and helps students identify the remaining courses needed for program completion and devise a course of study. All students in the undergraduate program are required to maintain a 2.75 GPA (3.0 for students in the MAT program) and earn at least a C in all content and pedagogy courses required for the degree and certification (B for students in the MAT program). Academic requirements will be substantially higher for students in the Five-Year Combined program, and their entry and continuation requirements are described below. Students must complete all requirements for graduation and certification, including program GPA requirements, before they will be admitted to student teaching. During student teaching, students are observed and evaluated by both a University supervisor and two cooperating teachers. Students who successfully complete their student teaching assignments, the student teaching seminar, and all program assessments are then recommended for certification.
52.21(b)(3) Specific Requirements. To be registered as a program leading to certification, the program shall meet the specific requirements of this paragraph for the particular certificate title. The general requirements prescribed in paragraph (2) of this subdivision shall also be applicable, unless such general requirements are explicitly stated to be inapplicable in paragraph (2) of this subdivision or by the specific requirements set forth in this paragraph.
ADOLESCENCE EDUCATION: In the Program Chart below, list all pedagogical courses for the proposed program, including those required by the General Pedagogical Core in 52.21(b)(2)(ii)(c) and the additional pedagogical study required for this program in 52.21(b)(3)(iv) below. Identify the courses by course number, title, number of credits, required (R) or elective (E), and instructor(s). If the Faculty Charts do not make clear each instructor’s qualifications to teach a particular course, provide that information below this Program Chart.

At the end of the application, attach a description of each pedagogical course for this program, as the course description will appear in the catalog. Please note that the description of any course identified as meeting a general or specific Pedagogical Core requirement, in whole or in part, should reflect that requirement.
(a) Content Core. In addition to meeting the general requirements for the content core prescribed in paragraph (2)(ii)(b) of this subdivision, the content core shall be a major or its equivalent in one of the liberal arts and sciences that provides a knowledge base for assisting students in grades 7 through 12 in meeting the State Learning Standards for students, as applicable to one of the following subjects and prescribed in Part 100 of this Title: English, a language other than English, biology, chemistry, earth science, physics, mathematics, or social studies, provided that the content core in social studies shall include study in economics, government, and at least a total of 21 semester hours of study in the history and geography of the United States and the world.

State the requirements for the Content Core. (See definition of major in 52.21(b)(1).) Identify the catalog pages where descriptions of existing liberal arts and sciences majors are found that candidates may select for meeting the Content Core requirements of this program. If new liberal arts and sciences majors are proposed for this purpose, list the requirements, including course numbers, titles, credits, and instructors; provide course descriptions; complete Faculty Charts for each; and see the Supplement for other required information.

To qualify for social studies certification, undergraduates must:
1. have completed a major in history or one of the other social science disciplines (Africana Studies, Anthropology, Economics, Political Science, Social Sciences Interdisciplinary, and Sociology),
2. complete at least 48 undergraduate credits in the social sciences with a C or better, and
3. complete at least 5 graduate courses in history
4. complete at least one course in each of the 11 required areas of study, which include survey courses in the following areas:
   i. US history to 1877
   ii. US history since 1877
   iii. Asia and its civilizations
   iv. African history
   v. European history/Western Civilization
   vi. Latin American history
   vii. Principles of economics viii. Science, technology and society
   ix. American politics and government
   x. The culture concept in history or theory
   xi. Human or cultural geography

In the combined program, these required areas of study must be met at the undergraduate level.
For this combined program proposal, the major is limited to Africana Studies. The requirements for the Africana Studies major (with social studies certification) include:

1. AFS 101 and 102 - Themes in the Black Experience I and II
2. Two courses from each of the following areas:
   - Africana Studies in the Humanities
   - Africana Studies in the Social Sciences
   - The African American Experience
   - The Global African Experience
3. Three credits in AFH or AFS 447 - Readings in Africana Studies or AFH or AFS 487 - Research in Africana Studies (junior or senior year)
4. Departmental writing requirement
5. 32 credits of social studies pedagogy and student teaching
6. Must satisfy the 11 Required Areas of Study (RAS) for social studies majors (as detailed on the advising worksheet included as the final exhibit to this document).

See http://www.sunysb.edu/spd/graduate/matss.html for greater detail on the MAT program in social studies.

Describe how the program ensures that candidates are prepared with a content knowledge base for assisting students in grades 7 through 12 in meeting the State Learning Standards for that level in the subject of the certificate sought.

We have two primary means of ensuring that students are prepared to teach the subject area in which they are seeking certification as described in the above in the rigorous course of study. The first of these are our admissions requirements, which require that students entering the MAT program have already taken a course of study adequate to prepare them for classroom teaching. This knowledge base is deepened through their graduate study. Second, the course of study in the MAT program was designed to satisfy both NCSS standards and to take account of the practical requirements of the New York State social studies curriculum. In addition, in the two methods courses, students are required to demonstrate the ability to teach to all of the NCSS content standards before they will be accepted for student teaching.

(b) Pedagogical Core. In addition to meeting the general requirements for the pedagogical core prescribed in paragraph (2)(ii)(c) of this subdivision, the pedagogical core shall focus on adolescence education and include, but need not be limited to:

(1) study in the processes of growth and development in adolescence and how to provide learning experiences and conduct assessments reflecting understanding of those processes;

Course title(s) and number(s):
PSY 327 – Human Development

(2) student teaching in both adolescence education settings, grades 7 through 9 and grades 10 through 12. The time requirements for field experience, student teaching and practica of paragraph (2)(ii)(c)(2)(i) of this subdivision shall not be applicable for candidates holding another classroom teaching certificate or candidates who are simultaneously preparing for another classroom teaching certificate and completing the full field experience, student teaching and practica requirement for that other certificate. In such instances, programs shall require such candidates to complete at least 50 clock hours of field experiences, practa, or student teaching with students in adolescence, including experiences in both adolescence education settings, grades 7 through 9 and grades 10 through 12.

The general pedagogical core requirements for field experiences, student teaching and/or practica of 52.21(b)(2)(ii)(c)(2) are repeated for ease of reference.

52.21(b)(2)(ii)(c)(2)(i) The program shall include at least 100 clock hours of field experiences related to coursework prior to student teaching or practa. The program shall include at least two college-supervised student-teaching experiences of at least 20 school days each.

52.21(b)(2)(ii)(c)(2)(ii) The field experiences, student teaching and practica shall:
(A) be consistent with the program’s philosophy, purposes and objectives and carefully selected and planned by program faculty, with learning outcomes specified and their achievement regularly evaluated;
(B) be accompanied by coursework or seminars and supervised by one or more faculty who participate actively in the program and in program development, and who have training and skills in supervision and the expertise to provide supervision related to content and pedagogy. Full-time faculty shall participate in supervising students during their student-teaching or practica experiences;
(C) provide candidates with experiences in a variety of communities and across the range of student developmental levels of the certificate, experiences practicing skills for interacting with parents or caregivers, experiences in high-need schools, and experiences with each of the following student populations: socioeconomically disadvantaged students, students who are English language learners, and students with disabilities;
and (D) for programs preparing candidates for more than one certificate, ensure that candidates have field experiences and/or student-teaching or practica experiences related to each certificate, as prescribed in paragraph (3) of this subdivision.

Describe how the requirements in (A), (B), (C), and (D), cited above, are met for the field experiences and student teaching:

(A) Students participate in 100 hours of field experience prior to their student teaching placement. These hours are divided equally between two courses: CEF 548 and CEF 549 (50 hours each), which are taken in conjunction with the two social studies methods courses (CEE 577/578). To ensure that field experience furthers the goals of our program, we have established partnerships with a number of area schools and districts. Both of our field experience courses are linked with subject area pedagogy courses, and all of these courses are aligned with both Stony Brook Candidate Proficiencies and the relevant NYSED and NCSS standards.

The student teaching practica consist of two college-supervised placements, one each in a grade 7-9 setting and a grade 10-12 setting. The entire practicum lasts 75 days, distributed approximately equally across the two placements. Progress is regularly monitored by the University supervisor and cooperating teachers, who are both required to assess student teaching performance using our program-wide assessment instruments.

(B) The two field experience courses must be taken in conjunction with the methods courses which are taught by faculty with substantial teaching experience in the subject and grade level. In these courses, students are required to complete a variety of specific assignments designed to forge a connection between classroom instruction and school-based observations in social studies classrooms. Such assignments include, but are not limited to, descriptions of the socio-economic structure of the school and community, analyses of instruction and class management, reports on the integration of literacy and NCSS/NYSED standards into instruction, analyses of strategies for differentiating instruction, and other forms of action research. Students who do not satisfactorily complete field experience are required to repeat both field experience and the methods course with which it is integrated.

Students must enroll in the student teaching seminar in conjunction with the two practica, and the fact that the seminar instructor is also responsible for supervising the practicum ensures that students are evaluated and advised on a regular basis and that there is a close connection between classroom instruction and the practica.

(C) We require students in both field experience courses to complete the bulk of their field experience in specific schools or districts which have been chosen to expose students to diverse bodies of 7-12 students. All students must complete a minimum of 50% of their 100 field experience hours in a high needs school, where they work specifically with socioeconomically disadvantaged students, English language learners and students with disabilities. We also have partnerships with academic intervention programs/alternative schools at several area districts and with the Even Start Family Literacy Programs, which enable our students to work with English Language Learners. These partnerships, as well as the SUNY Urban Teacher Education Center, also make it possible for a substantial proportion of our students to complete their practica in high needs schools.

The purpose of this subject account is to support instruction and research on the experiences of persons of African descent throughout the world. Special emphasis is given to support the exploration of African civilizations and their influences on other parts of the “Black Diaspora.” English is the predominant language of the collection. Works in French on Francophone Africa and in Spanish on the Caribbean are collected selectively. The library does not collect actively in African languages. While no limits are placed on the geographical areas covered the current emphasis is on Africa, the United States, Caribbean, and the UK. No limits are places on the chronological period covered but current emphasis is on the nineteenth and twentieth century.

Electronic material
The library currently subscribes to thirty-five electronic journals related to Africana Studies. In twenty-two cases the virtually the entire run of an important journal is available online through JSTOR. The majority of Stony Brook’s Africana-related journals are now available in electronic form only. In addition library subscribes to both the Black Studies database (an electronic version of the Kaiser Index to Black studies which unfortunately ends in 1989) and Ethic News Watch, a full-text index to the ethnic press. A large number of other databases include relevant information.

Print material

APPENDIX II
LIBRARY RESOURCES IN HISTORY

A. Location and Size:

1. Location of Materials: History materials are located throughout the library system. The interdisciplinary character of history makes it difficult to define the boundaries of the history collection: historians are concerned with all human activities, provided they occurred in the past. The stacks of the Main Library are the repository for most materials in history. The Reference Department houses the major print indexes, handbooks, and bibliographies in history; online history databases are available through the internet. Many major collections of source materials are housed in the Microforms Section of the Reference Department. The Documents Section of the Reference Department has various primary source materials in history, namely, publications of U.S. federal, state, and local governments, as well as publications of the United Nations. Cartographic materials are located in the Map Collections is the custodian of both primary sources and secondary works in history, particularly for the Long Island region. Much of the material relating o the history of science is housed in the science libraries. In addition, there is an increasing number of journals whose current issues are only available in electronic format.

2. Estimate of Holdings: It is impossible to estimate accurately the holdings in history because of the various locations of materials and because much historical material has not been cataloged. Thus, the bulk of the holdings of the Documents Section and Microforms Section are not reflected in the STARS system. Although some of these materials have been cataloged as collective titles, the individual works within these collections are not reflected. There are many times as many uncataloged titles in history as cataloged works. The following estimate of holdings in history is based on an outdated measurement of the Library’s shelf list, and the shelf list contains only cataloged titles. It should also be noted that the following estimate includes only materials assigned by the Library of Congress as belonging to the core history areas (classification number beginning with C, D, E, F) and the history of medicine. The list therefore excludes most materials in such areas as the history of science, the history of ideas, and contemporary politics. Currently the library subscribes to about 192 periodicals for the core history areas.

B. Description of Collection

1. Purpose: The primary purpose of the history collection is to support the teaching and research needs of the Department of History. The History Department offers B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees in a number of areas. The academic and research programs of the Department have focused on the United States, Latin America, and Western Europe. Within Western Europe, there has been particular emphasis on the history of Germany, France, the United Kingdom, Ireland, and to a lesser extent Spain. There is also a small doctoral program in Russian history. Another concentration is on the history of Northeast Asia (China, Japan, and Korea), but this program is mostly on the undergraduate level. The History Department participates in a number of interdisciplinary programs on both the undergraduate and the graduate levels -- especially Africana Studies, Women Studies, Judaic Studies, and various geographic area studies programs in co-operation with the Anthropology Department and foreign language departments.

   Because of these numerous interdisciplinary programs and the wide-ranging character of history itself, the history collection plays some role in supporting virtually all of the programs of the University. The selector for history has to consider the needs and programs of all of the humanities and social sciences, and to a certain extent the sciences. This mandates close co-operation between the history subject specialist and those for other fields.

2. History and Special Strength of Collections: From the beginning of the University, the Department of History has been actively involved with collection development of library materials. The direct input from members of the Department has been particularly strong. Their academic and research interests have created special strengths within the collection. The collection is particularly strong in Latin American history. The coverage of the history of the United States focuses most intensely on the Northeast and the South.
C. General Collection Guidelines

1. Treatment of subject: General Standard Statement of the Library applies. Text Books are not purchased. Popular works are collected very selectively. Scholarly treatments of all subject areas of history are vigorously collected, including those from university presses, trade publishers, research, and learned associations.

2. Types of Materials: Primary and secondary works in history are purchased extensively. Primary sources include such materials as printed collections of documents, newspapers, autobiographies, diaries, and statistical materials. Secondary materials include scholarly monographs and periodicals. Dissertations are purchased selectively at the request of the History Department. Large collections of source materials on microform are purchased when funds are available, but are given lower priority than printed materials.

3. Languages: Most materials are collected in English. Both primary and secondary materials are collected in German, French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, and Russian. Small amounts of material are collected in other western and non-western languages.

4. Chronological Guideline:
   a. No limitations on period collected, although most programs focus on the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Emphasis varies according to subject and geographical area (see detailed breakdown by subject at end on this statement).

5. Geographical Guidelines:

Appendix III: Resources Dedicated to the program

Stony Brook has recently been nationally accredited by the National Accreditation for Teacher Education (NCATE). NCATE Board of Examiners members were impressed by the space, resources, and equipment available to the teacher education programs and the PEP Unit.

(j) Institutions shall provide sufficient resources and equipment and adequate facilities and physical space, as prescribed in section 52.2(a) of this Part, to support effective teaching and scholarship by faculty and effective learning and scholarship by students in the program.

Describe the resources, equipment, facilities, and physical space that are:

1) dedicated to this program:
As part of Stony Brook’s successful NCATE accreditation in October 2004, the University has committed substantial additional financial resources to the Social Studies Teacher Education Program. This has enabled us to hire additional full-time faculty with requisite expertise and experience and to reduce our maximum class sizes well below the maximum limits established by NCATE and NYSED. We have adequate secretarial support, supplies, and equipment (computers, telephones, photocopy machines, TVs, VCRs) to support our mission. All faculty have offices (either personal or, with some part-time faculty, shared) in the social studies wing of one of the main campus buildings.

2) readily available for use by this program.
While all faculty have computers in their offices, the most important campus-wide resources that are available to the program are the computing facilities offered through the Division of Information Technology (DoIT), Client Support and the Teaching, Learning and Technology (TLT) Office. There are numerous computer labs located across campus that are available to all enrolled students. TLT provides instruction to social studies classes in the relevant technologies. Client Support is responsible for maintaining the campus network and maintaining faculty computers. The Professional Education Program and DoIT jointly maintain the online assessment system used by the program.

Include library resources and facilities, as well as any special facilities that pertain to this program (e.g., music, speech/language laboratories, physical education, etc.).

See Appendix I

Other Support Services and Resources
The Counseling Center provides programs for personal growth and enrichment. Each semester the Center provides stimulating workshops designed to enhance personal skill development. Some of the most popular group programs are stress management, interviewing for success, assertion training, study skills. These programs are open to all Stony Brook students, staff, and faculty free of charge.

Disabled Student Services coordinates services to disabled students. These include facilitating and arranging for registration, advisement, special parking permits, facilities, transportation, financial aid, special study facilities in the library, facilities for untimed examinations and needed classroom aids. The office is located in Room 128 in the Educational Communications Center.

Veterans Affairs provides assistance in preparing applications for V.A. educational benefits and other financial aid programs for veterans and dependents of veterans.
Graduate Student Organization (GSO) is composed of all students enrolled in graduate programs at Stony Brook. It operates a housing service and a part-time job service. Several active committees work on helping to solve problems facing graduate students. The Graduate Student Senate, representing all departments, oversees the mandatory student activity fee on campus social, cultural, athletic, and public service events. All graduate students are welcome to help coordinate on-going activities.

The University provides Child Care Services in the form of day care for children ranging in age from two months to five years. There are four on-campus facilities staffed with professionals who are assisted by students enrolled in course work practica. The Centers are open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and fees are charged on a sliding scale according to financial ability.

English as a Second Language program includes diagnosis and testing as well as classes aimed at raising a student’s ability to understand, speak, read, and write standard college-level English.

The Career Center assists students with career planning. Help in defining career goals and the steps which can be taken to achieve them is offered through the following services: individual counseling, a career resource library, interest testing, DISCOVER, (a computer-based career guidance system), test administration, credential files, on-campus recruitment program, and volunteer placement through VITAL (Volunteers Involved Together for Action in Life). The office is located in the Frank Melville Library, Room W-0550.

The Writing Center, a support service of the Program of Writing and Rhetoric, has been set up to assist students preparing to undertake a research paper or any other writing project. The Writing Center is open from 9:00 am - 5:00 pm Monday through Friday and conducts evening and Saturday hours that change from semester to semester.

GRADUATE HISTORY COURSES OFFERED FOR STUDENTS IN THE MAT PROGRAM

HIS 500/CEG 523 Historiography
Introduction to historiography through reading and writing about interpretations of history, historical methods, and major historians. Term paper on historian of choice.
Note: CEG 523 meets with HIS 500. MAT and MA/LS students must register under CEG 523.

CEG 532 US History to Civil War
This graduate-level survey course in U.S. history is designed primarily for full-time social studies and secondary history teachers who are pursuing their master’s degrees through the School of Professional Development. Requirements include weekly readings and class discussions, writing four short response papers, completing a research project, participating in online discussions, giving two brief class presentations, and presenting your research project to the class. This course is similar to HIS 521 (the survey course for M.A. and Ph.D. students) in that you are required to comprehend and analyze scholarly historical arguments through weekly readings and class discussions. This course is different from HIS 521 in that more resources are devoted to expanding your pedagogical skills and developing new methods for engaging your secondary-level students in challenging historical analysis.

CEG 522 Introduction to United States History Since the Civil War
Field seminar in U.S. history from the Civil War to the Cold War. Surveys the major interpretations.

HIS 501/CEG 516 Early Modern Europe
In this course we will examine comparative approaches to topics in early modern European history. Moving chronologically and thematically through the early modern period, material covered will include European expansion and encounters with non-western cultures, religion, ritual, Reformation, the emergence of capitalism and civil society, European statecraft, the new science, and the Enlightenment. We will engage a variety of thematic/theoretical analyses of these topics, with emphasis on a cultural approach to issues of gender, race, and class, their shifting significations and social contestations.

HIS 502/CEG 524 Introduction to Late Modern Europe
Field seminar in late modern European history, 1789-1945. Surveys the major historical problems and interpretations from the French Revolution through the Second World War. Note: CEG 524 meets with HIS 502. Non-matriculated students must get permission from instructor. MAT and MA/LS students must register under CEG 524.

HIS 541/CEG 535 Colonial Latin America
This course provides an introduction to the history of colonial Latin America and the Caribbean (c. 1500-1800). The class will bring together the history of human communities from three continents (Africa, America and Europe) and highlight the voices of indigenous and African historical narrators. The course will examine not only the conflict ridden encounter between Spanish and American indigenous civilizations (Aztec, Inca and Maya) but the subsequent forced migration of Africans into the Americas to serve as a coerced labor force. As the semester continues we will see how these initial processes of resistance, conquest and adaptation served as powerful forces in the construction of the economic, social and cultural relations that typified Spanish colonial society. Finally, we will examine the breakdown of Spanish colonialism as a result of a series of imperial realignments, slave revolts and, ultimately, wars of independence. The overall goal of the class is to provide a global framework to understand Latin America, and, thereby, to allow students to bring this rich history into their high school classrooms. Written assignments will include a review of a recent scholarly work, the development of a lesson plan and other periodic writing assignments.
CEG 517 Modern Latin America
This course explores the trajectory of modern Latin American history beginning with the Wars of Independence. Geographically the course focuses on Mexico, the Caribbean, Central America, and Chile. The course covers major social, cultural, and political developments in these regions. Materials and lectures engage issues of slavery and the roots of persistent poverty, nationalism, modernization, revolution, indigenous rebellion, and US intervention in Latin America. When appropriate, emphasis will be placed on local struggles wherein issues of race, gender, and labor come into sharper focus.

HIS 562/CEG 534 Introduction to Modern African History and/or Asian History Field seminar in modern African history. Surveys major topics such as nationalism, anticolonial movements, and modernization.

CEJ 501 Traditional China: Culture & Society
This course will provide a graduate level survey of the history, culture and society from the earliest times until the Ming dynasty. It will focus on such issues as religion and social hierarchy, gender and family, the gentry and the examination system, rhythms of economic growth and decline, peasant rebellions, and the dynamics of empire building.

HIS 654/CEJ 502 Modern China: Culture & Society
In this graduate level introductory course of Chinese history we will (1) offer a narrative of the history of China from late Ming dynasty (ca. 1600) to post-Mao era with an emphasis on the various interpretative paradigms, and (2) examine in depth some important topics of the period addressed by our weekly reading, which might include: civil service examination and social mobility in late imperial China, commercialization in the seventeenth century and China's early modernity, China in world-historical time, and the developments of nationalism and communism. Students are expected to come away from the class with a clearer idea of the history and historiography of late imperial and modern China. Our meetings will be comprised of lectures and discussions. There are four scholarly books as well as a textbook for this course. Requirements for this course include weekly reading (about two hundred pages per week) and participation in class discussion, occasional in class writings and two 5 page papers.

I. Admissions and General Information

Students seeking state certification in teaching social studies must complete a major in one of the following departments:

- Africana Studies
- Economics
- Political Science
- Anthropology
- History
- Sociology

In addition to being registered in an appropriate major, applicants:

- have an overall GPA of 2.75 or better based on at least 12 credits taken at Stony Brook. Incoming transfer students will be evaluated on the basis of GPA from their prior institution.
- have taken either HIS 101 or 102 and either HIS 103 or 104 (or equivalent courses at other institutions), and
- have satisfied at least three of the required areas of study with a B or better. HIS 101/102 and HIS 103/104 may be used to satisfy this admission requirement.

All courses must be taken for a letter grade and passed with a C or better. Students must have at least a 2.75 overall GPA and have completed all program requirements (both content and pedagogy) to qualify for student teaching. For further information, see the PEP Guide to Teacher Education.

II. Professional Education Requirements

The methods courses must be taken sequentially. Students must earn a C or better in these two courses and perform satisfactorily on course-based assessments in order to remain in good standing and progress to the next course in the sequence. The field experience courses must be taken concurrently with the methods courses, and students will be required to repeat both courses if requirements for either course are not met.

IV. Content Area Requirements
Students must complete five graduate history courses above and beyond the 36 credits in history and social sciences required for admission to the program. Graduate students must also meet the distribution requirements specified in the eleven Required Areas of Study. These requirements may be met by either the graduate courses taken towards the MAT degree or by undergraduate coursework. Undergraduate transcripts will be evaluated on an individual basis. Equivalent undergraduate courses will normally be accepted. In addition, a cluster of undergraduate courses may be accepted as evidence of satisfaction of individual standards, even if they do not represent exact equivalents. However, the student will bear the burden of proof of showing that such coursework does provide a broad introductory knowledge of the area of study.
