Health Disparities in a Global Context

Date: Wednesday, November 8, 2017
Time: 5:30PM-6:30PM
Where: Richard B. Moore Library Africana Studies, SBS S224

Light refreshments served

Dr. Adryan Wallace, Asst. Professor, joined Africana Studies at Stony Brook in September, 2017. Her research interests include gender, political economy, Islam and the dynamic interactions of politics and culture on political institutions. The majority of her work focuses on how Muslim women in West Africa are able to articulate their development interests within the context of Sharia law and secular political institutions.

Dr. Jennie Williams, Assoc. Professor, Preventative Medicine, Stony Brook, attended Savannah State University (BS) and Tuskegee University (MS). She received her Ph.D. from Purdue University and did postdoctoral work at Harvard prior to joining the Institute for Cancer Prevention in Valhalla, New York. She joined Stony Brook University as a Research Associate in 2004. She received a number of research grants from the National Institutes of Health/National Cancer Institute.

Previous Henrietta Lacks Seminar was Breaking the Cycle: The Socioeconomic Factor Respectability Politics and HIV/AIDS, September 20, 2017

Questions? Call Ann Berrios at 631 632 7470  http://www.stonybrook.edu/afs