The Center for Corporate Education’s (CCE) program is dedicated to working with professionals who have been dislocated from their positions or who seek to further their education into new careers. We work closely with regional organizations to help deliver world-class teaching, advice and counseling. Current partners include:

- The three Long Island Work Force Investment Boards
- New York State Department of Labor
- Empire State Development
- Total Systems Education
- Stony Brook University Career Development Office
- Project Management Institute (PMI®)
- International Institute for Business Analysis (IIBA)
- US Green Building Council – Long Island Chapter

By partnering with national and NY State funding programs, CCE has enabled over 1,500 dislocated professionals, to date, to participate in certificate and professional development programs at no cost to them.
Education with Connections to Jobs

The Center for Corporate Education (CCE) is building bridges between today’s economic opportunities and a talented workforce. By providing essential skills, new ways of thinking, support and connections, we are reenergizing our regional economy, helping both business and business leaders regain a strong foothold in a competitive landscape. CCE works with transitional professionals to augment their deep and diverse work experience. Earning a certificate in Project Management or Business Analysis or preparing for the Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) GA or AP credentialing exam is an important step toward future success.

CCE offers revitalizing education that leads to in-demand, marketable certificates and skills. Furthermore, participants gain valuable access to Stony Brook University's Career Development Office and our web portal with connectivity to professional level positions in the region. Companies looking for highly qualified, skilled and motivated workers can also utilize this web portal to post open positions.

Thanks to public/private collaboration with workforce investment boards, the NYS Department of Labor, the Project Management Institute and the International Institute of Business Analysts, CCE has had an excellent success rate in helping displaced workers rejoin the workforce.
