The Center for Inclusive Education presents:

RESEARCH CAFÉ

Friday, October 3, 2014 at 12:30pm
Center for Inclusive Education—2401 Computer Science Building
Please RSVP using this link: www.stonybrook.edu/commcms/cie/researchcafe.html

Lunch will be provided.

Miles Hentrup
Ph.D. Candidate in the Department of Philosophy

‘HEGEL AND SKEPTICISM’

Synopsis: Skepticism has been long considered the antithesis of philosophical thinking. In this presentation, I elaborate the specific problems which skepticism poses to philosophy and outline the response to these problems presented by nineteenth-century German philosopher G.W.F. Hegel.

Biography: Miles is a fourth year PhD student in the Philosophy program. Before coming to Stony Brook, Miles completed his BA and MA in Philosophy at the University of Oregon. His dissertation explores the relationship between philosophy and skepticism in the late modern period.