HUMANITIES INSTITUTE AT STONY BROOK PRESENTS

HISB GRADUATE PUBLIC HUMANITIES FELLOWS
SPRING LECTURE 2017

The Humanities Institute at Stony Brook was established in 1987 to promote interdisciplinary research and collaboration across the university. Through conferences, lectures, seminars, workshops, exhibitions, film series, and performances, HISB draws on and stimulates new knowledge at the cutting edge of intellectual life.

The Seneca language, like many Native languages, is nearing extinction. In this talk, Delgado explores the circumstances that led to this current state of the language before detailing efforts, including his own through the construction of a multimodal website, aimed at preserving the language and culture going forward.

Francisco Delgado is a Ph.D. candidate in English at Stony Brook University, where he is also a W. Burghardt Turner Fellow. An enrolled member of the Tonawanda Band of Seneca Indian tribe of upstate New York, he proposes a project that will construct an interactive website to teach and promote the Seneca language and culture.

NYA:WĒH SGĒ:NŌ’: REVITALIZING THE SENECA INDIAN LANGUAGE
Francisco Delgado, Ph.D Candidate in English

Tuesday, April 4, 2017 at 4:00 pm, 1008 Humanities

www.stonybrook.edu/humanities | 1013 Humanities Building, Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, NY 11794-5354

The Humanities Institute at Stony Brook was established in 1987 to promote interdisciplinary research and collaboration across the university. Through conferences, lectures, seminars, workshops, exhibitions, film series, and performances, HISB draws on and stimulates new knowledge at the cutting edge of intellectual life.