Tiffany Joseph (Sociology) completed her PhD in Sociology (2011) at the Univ. of Michigan. She was a R. Wood Johnson Foundation Health Policy Scholar at Harvard Univ. from 2011-2013. Her first book Race on the Move: Brazilian Migrants and the Global Reconstruction of Race was published by Stanford Univ. Press in 2015. Her second project explores how documentation status influences the healthcare access and utilization of Latino immigrants in the Boston metropolitan area. Her work has been published in Ethnic and Racial Studies, Gender and Education, and Race and Social Problems.

Abena Ampofoa Asare is Assistant Professor of Modern African Affairs specializing in West African post-colonial history. Her research spans questions of migration, human rights, and transitional justice in Africa and the African diaspora. She is currently working on a book manuscript entitled A Survivors’ History of Ghana: Memories of Human Rights and Resistance in the National Reconciliation Commission.

Sponsored by the Department of Africana Studies, Sociology and the Latin American and Caribbean Studies Center.