By attending this workshop, you will gain a solid understanding of the creative and the organizational aspects of preparing a competitive NIH K99-R00 application. You will also have the opportunity to network with past winners of the K99-R00 and be paired up for one-on-one mentoring throughout the application process.

Topics

- Review of program goals, eligibility, and comparison to other awards
- Discussion of the review process
- Craft an action plan for preparing a scientifically compelling and clearly written proposal
- Strategically build a mentoring team and develop a NIH biosketch
- Draft a preliminary outline of the Training and Mentoring Plans

Wang Room 201
Tuesday, February 13, 2018
10:30am to 2:30pm
Lunch will be provided

Please RSVP by Tuesday, February 6th
http://bit.ly/2nbiAXr