ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY
STONY BROOK UNIVERSITY

The Department of Psychology at Stony Brook University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position. We are particularly interested in a scholar whose research focuses on cognitive aspects of aging and age-related health conditions. Such research might investigate, for example, attention, memory, perception, or decision-making in aging populations. Opportunities for collaboration exist across campus with units including the Center for Aging Policy Research in the School of Social Welfare; the Geriatrics and Geriatric Psychiatry programs in the School of Medicine; the Biomedical Orthopedics Laboratory in the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences; and the Disability Studies Program in the School of Health Technology and Management. Successful candidates will be investigators with the potential to secure extramural funding for their research, and with some experience in teaching and mentoring.

Candidates should email a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, statements of research and teaching interests, representative publications, and arrange to have three letters of recommendation emailed to: Psychology_Search@stonybrook.edu. To ensure that an application is given full consideration, files should be received no later than October 1, 2016, although applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Questions about this position may be sent to Arthur Samuel at Arthur.Samuel@stonybrook.edu.

The Psychology Department at Stony Brook University encompasses doctoral programs in Clinical Psychology, Cognitive Science, Integrative Neuroscience, and Social and Health Psychology.
