

The Humanities Institute of Stony Brook/College of Arts and Sciences
VOICES IN CULTURAL STUDIES

Dr. Lisa Lowe
Professor

Comparative Literature

affiliated faculty in Ethnic Studies and Critical Gender Studies

University of California San Diego

9500 Gilman Drive # 0410

La Jolla, CA 92093-0410

Title: Metaphors of Globalization

Seminar Coordinators: Dr. Elizabeth Ann Kaplan, SUNY Distinguished Professor of English and Comparative Literary and Cultural Studies; Director, The Humanities Institute at Stony Brook; Past President, The Society for Cinema and Media Studies (telephone: 631 632 7765)

and

Dr. Lisa Diederich, Assistant Professor, Women's Studies (telephone: 631 632 9176)

Date: Wednesday, October 3, 2007, 4:30PM room 1006 of the Humanities Building

Biography

Dr. Lisa Lowe is Professor of Comparative Literature at UC San Diego and an affiliated faculty in Ethnic Studies and Critical Gender Studies there; in 2007-08, she is Visiting Professor of American Studies at Yale University. She is the author of Critical Terrains: French and British Orientalisms (Cornell, 1991), Immigrant Acts: On Asian American Cultural Politics (Duke, 1996), and coeditor of The Politics of Culture in the Shadow of Capital (Duke, 1997), and essays on race, culture, and immigration with globalization.

Directions: Refer to website: <http://www.sunysb.edu> or call Ann Berrios at 631 632 9983 for more information. Please check <http://ws.cc.stonybrook.edu/humanities/> for any change in time or location.

The State University of New York is an equal opportunity employer/educator

The Humanities Institute's 20th anniversary celebration
Cosmopolitanism and Globalization
Memory*Spaces*Cities*Images
October 10th to October 13th, 2007