DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY
UPPER DIVISION WRITING REQUIREMENT

All Sociology majors must satisfy the University's upper division writing requirement. This can be done by obtaining the instructor's certification based on the student's written work in a course that is currently designated as a writing-intensive course. The requirement can be satisfied by writing good papers, not by simply passing the course.

At the beginning of the semester, present this form to your instructor to indicate that you intend to submit your written work in the course to satisfy the upper division writing requirement. During the semester, the instructor will provide comments on your writing and may require revisions where the work is unsatisfactory. Finally, on the basis of the quality of your writing, the instructor will certify whether or not you have passed this requirement and hand in the form to Ms. Sharon Worksman, Undergraduate Coordinator. If you do not pass, you will have the opportunity to select another writing course the following semester.
