NEW COURSE THIS SPRING 19

SPN 399
COMMUNICATION MEDIA AND JOURNALISM IN SPANISH

Prof. Paul Firbas paul.firbas@stonybrook.edu

Tu / Th: 1.00 to 2.20 pm

In this workshop-class you will read, ask, analyze, research, write, edit, produce and publish news and multimedia material in Spanish.

Our approach to the digital media culture of globalized Latin America, Spain and Latino USA will be through specific historical and social contexts, paying attention to power relations, gender and ethnic politics, and ethical matters. The intersection of journalism and literature (the crónica), the new testimonial documentaries and the tensions between storytelling and information will be central to our multimedia work.

The final group project will involve a multimedia digital publication in Spanish related to current events in Spanish speaking communities. This class is taught in Spanish.

Prerequisites: SPN 321 or special permission.
This course satisfies the SBC: HFA+ and GLO.
