Description: In-depth training course in the craft of history, with a systematic introduction to methods, analysis, synthesis, and writing. As the gateway course for the History major senior seminar, HIS 301 teaches students how to locate, organize, and analyze primary and secondary sources, distill the information in intelligible and meaningful writing, and convey one’s findings in persuasive and articulate oral presentations.

These skills are taught through a close analysis of how historians have analyzed the experience of Indigenous Peoples of the Americas (a.k.a. American Indians or Native Americans) with smallpox, a deadly virus not present in the Americas prior to 1492 but one that accompanied European colonizers after 1492. You may already know that smallpox epidemics did a great deal of damage to Indigenous Peoples, but the topic has proven rather complex to understand. Particular questions arise concerning the timing in which the disease struck particular Native groups, mortality rates from the disease, the validity of European and Euro-American accounts as well as Native oral history that supposedly document the experience, whether smallpox became a weapon that colonizers consciously and deliberately used against Indigenous Peoples, how Natives responded to the deadly disease, the role of the U.S. government in vaccinating Natives, and the relative importance of smallpox compared to other aspects of colonization in facilitating European/Euro-American expansion and Native dispossession.

Course readings will introduce you to the varied ways that historians have studied the topic. In the first part of the course, we will concentrate on the basics of reading and assessing secondary sources and analyzing and using primary sources. In the second part of the course, you will apply these skills to a historical topic of your choosing. Although readings will focus primarily on the Indigenous experience with smallpox from 1492 to 1890, students are welcome to explore other topics as well. I do reserve the right, however, to set limits on what the topics may be; topics too far outside my ability to effectively guide you and topics too broad or too narrow in scope will not be allowed. Nevertheless, I will help you tailor this course to your individual interests.
General education designation(s) (SBC): Evaluate and Synthesize Researched Information (ESI)

1. Locate and organize information from a variety of appropriate sources.
2. Analyze the accuracy of information and the credibility of sources.
3. Determine the relevance of information.
4. Use information ethically and responsibly.

OBJECTIVES
• Read secondary sources critically by analyzing the author’s thesis, arguments, and motives.
• Analyze primary sources by asking questions about their purpose, argument, presumptions, and limitations.
• Improve your writing, especially with regard to the thesis, structure, and arguments.
• Apply the rules and conventions of scholarly writing, including proper citation and grammar.

POLICIES

University Policies:

Student Accessibility Support Center Statement:
If you have a physical, psychological, medical, or learning disability that may impact your course work, please contact the Student Accessibility Support Center, 128 ECC Building, (631) 632-6748, or at sasc@stonybrook.edu. They will determine with you what accommodations are necessary and appropriate. All information and documentation is confidential.

Students who require assistance during emergency evacuation are encouraged to discuss their needs with their professors and the Student Accessibility Support Center. For procedures and information go to the following website: https://ehs.stonybrook.edu/programs/fire-safety/emergency-evacuation(evacuation-guide-people-physical-disabilities) and search Fire Safety and Evacuation and Disabilities.

Academic Integrity Statement:
Each student must pursue his or her academic goals honestly and be personally accountable for all submitted work. Representing another person's work as your own is always wrong. Faculty is required to report any suspected instances of academic dishonesty to the Academic Judiciary. Faculty in the Health Sciences Center (School of Health Technology & Management, Nursing, Social Welfare, Dental Medicine) and School of Medicine are required to follow their school-specific procedures. For more comprehensive information on academic integrity, including categories of academic dishonesty please refer to the academic judiciary website at http://www.stonybrook.edu/commcms/academic_integrity/index.html

Important Note: Any form of academic dishonesty, including cheating and plagiarism, will be reported to the Academic Judiciary.

Critical Incident Management:
Stony Brook University expects students to respect the rights, privileges, and property of other people. Faculty are required to report to the Office of University Community Standards any disruptive behavior that interrupts their ability to teach, compromises the safety of the learning environment, or inhibits students' ability to learn. Faculty in the HSC Schools and the School of Medicine are required to follow their school-specific procedures. Further information about most academic matters can be found in the Undergraduate Bulletin, the Undergraduate Class Schedule, and the Faculty-Employee Handbook.
Course Policies:

Understand When You May Drop This Course:
It is the student’s responsibility to understand when they need to consider withdrawing from a course. Incomplete Policy:
Under emergency/special circumstances, students may petition for an incomplete grade. Circumstances must be documented and significant enough to merit an incomplete. If you need to request an incomplete for this course, contact me for approval as far in advance as possible.

Course Materials and Copyright Statement:
Course materials accessed from Blackboard, SB Connect, SB Capture or a Stony Brook Course website is for the exclusive use of students who are currently enrolled in the course. Content from these systems cannot be reused or distributed without written permission of the instructor and/or the copyright holder. Duplication of materials protected by copyright, without permission of the copyright holder is a violation of the Federal copyright law, as well as a violation of Stony Brook’s Academic Integrity.

Online Communication Guidelines and Learning Resources:
Maintain professional conduct both in the classroom and online. The classroom is a professional environment where academic debate and learning take place. I will make every effort to make this environment safe for you to share your opinions, ideas, and beliefs. In return, you are expected to respect the opinions, ideas, and beliefs of other students—both in the face-to-face classroom and online communication. Students have the right and privilege to learn in the class, free from harassment and disruption. The course follows the standards set in the Student Code of Conduct, and students are subject to disciplinary action for violation of that code. If your behavior does not follow the course etiquette standards stated below, the grade you receive for a posting may suffer. I reserve the right to remove any discussion messages that display inappropriate language or content.
