

Outcomes of Bachelor's Degree Recipients

Stony Brook University collects information about its graduates in a variety of ways to understand their pathways following graduation and also to provide to consumer information. Activities following graduation are reported to Stony Brook by graduates. The most recent survey of 2020-21 graduates was conducted in fall 2021 and offers the most representative information about employment rates, rates of continuing education and location of employment. The response rate to the survey was 13%.

Aggregated salary data are provided by the U.S. Census Bureau Post-Secondary Education Outcomes (PSEO) data tool of 35,141 individuals who received a bachelor's degree from Stony Brook between 2001 and 2018; all amounts are in inflation-adjusted 2019 dollars (release R2021Q3). The COVID-19 global pandemic may have influenced graduate behavior and earnings.
