Location: Social and Behavioral Sciences, Room SBS N112

Workshop Title: The Paleo Perspective
Workshop Description: "Is there a "caveman" buried deep inside each of us-one that we refuse to recognize? Do we have Paleolithic instincts and urgings? How much of our behavior is a vestige from our hunter-gatherer past? Humans were in fact designed to live in small communal groupings. The further away from this setting that we find ourselves, the less likely it is that our genetically governed instincts will adequately serve us. "The Paleo Perspective" explores the "Plight of Prehistoric Man in Modern Times."
Workshop Leader: Robert Decostanzo

Workshop Title: Ten Great Composers
Workshop Description: This workshop will focus in more detail on ten of the composers whose music we have explored in previous classical music workshops. The talented and colorful characters who created such a remarkable legacy of classical music from the late eighteenth to the early twentieth centuries lived in dramatic times, and often led unconventional lives. We will learn more about them through narrative, documentary films and by listening to examples of their best music. Beginning with Haydn and Mozart, we follow the history of classical music through Beethoven and Tchaikovsky to twentieth-century composers like Copeland and Stravinsky.
Workshop Leader: David Bouchier

Workshop Title: DNA, Genes, and Their Societal Implications
Workshop Description: Very significant 20th and 21st century advances in the biological sciences involved the discoveries that DNA is the genetic material, the structure of DNA, and the ability of recombinant DNA (gene splicing) techniques to modify DNA. These advances are profoundly influencing our society, particularly in medicine, agriculture, and forensics. We will consider how elegantly DNA structure implies its functions, and how the information in DNA is expressed in cells. We will then discuss how DNA can be modified, and the resultant implications for society. The workshop is aimed at non-scientists. It will be based on a series of Great Courses DVD lectures, plus the 30+ years of experience of the workshop leader in directing research in the field of molecular biology.
